

The Coigach and Assynt Heritage Trail

CCDC worked with Historic Assynt on another Coigach and Assynt Living Landscape Partnership Scheme project, the new Heritage Trail, which was launched in May of this year. The trail runs from Culnacraig to Kylesku - you will find striking interpretation monoliths, made from Corten steel, along with traditional stone plinths at various points through the area, along with a leaflet full of information. Oak waymarker posts displaying the Trail's QR code will take you to the new website, www.candatrail.com.

This was a collaborative community project: we engaged Seoras Burnett as a researcher to speak to people from across the area to get authentic and original accounts. From rebellions during the Highland Clearances to World War Two submarine missions; seismic geological discoveries to hazardous mountain walks to school, our area is alive with stories from the past. This is a history for everyone: for those who live here and for those who visit.
